People of the COE

Dr. Lisa Brown will continue to serve on the NASA eClips™ Technical Advisory Board. Dr. Brown is one of 20 educators nationwide to serve on the board.

NASA eClips™ is a NASA-supported project that produces free educational resources for increasing STEM literacy in both formal and non-formal settings.

The resources, used by educators worldwide, bring together exciting video segments with educational best practices to inspire and educate students to become 21st Century explorers.

Dr. Peggy Holzweiss was interviewed by PBS Michiana for her digital escape room lessons. Dr. Holzweiss uses digital escape rooms as a collaboration tool for class introductions or final exam reviews for her students. Watch the interview

Book Release

Dr. Marilyn Rice and Peggy Holzweiss contributed to a new book Carnegie Mellon University ETC Press. The book is called “Professors at Play Playbook” and features research on playful learning in higher education as well as close to 100 playful teaching techniques. Learn about the book

New CARES Podcast

The Center for Assessment, Research, and Educational Safety, CARES, is a research center dedicated to supporting educators' needs regarding safety, mental health, and preventing violence in schools. This year we will be tackling a new project... a Podcast! The CARES Podcast covers a variety of different topics including but not limited to crisis prevention, dating violence, bullying, suicide prevention, and campus safety. The CARES Podcast also features personal stories and conversations with experts in the field. Tune in monthly on Spotify for new episodes!
